

“Accountability mechanisms for environmental protection and human rights in IFI and EU funded projects”

*Budapest Thursday 18 November 2010, 9 am
Hotel Ramada Budapest
30-34 Tompa Street, 1094 Budapest 9th district
Working language - English*

INVITATION to a seminar of CEE Bankwatch Network and National Society of Conservationists (Hungary)

Dear Madam or Sir,

Accountability mechanisms are an expression of the development of democratic systems, addressing a wide array of issues ranging from access to information, environmental protection, human rights and compliance with policy, procedure and law. When used effectively by civil society, these mechanisms can protect the public interest and find solutions to problems caused by projects.

On behalf of our organisations we would like to invite you to the seminar which aim is to initiate dialogue among representatives from accountability mechanisms at the international financial institutions, the EU and Hungarian Ombudsmen, Aarhus Convention Secretariat, Hungarian civil society organisations and others from south Europe, Russia, the Caucasus and Central Asia (CCA), to share experience in working with these mechanisms and promote their functioning to all attending stakeholders. This seminar is also an opportunity to strengthen the ongoing dialogue among civil society representatives and present international accountability mechanisms for protecting the environment and human rights.

Participation in the seminar is free of charge.

The agenda and registration form are attached to this invitation. Please return the form by 28 October 2010 to annar@bankwatch.org or by fax at +48 918 803 870

For more information contact
Anna Roggenbuck, CEE Bankwatch Network
T + 48 918 803 872
E - annar@bankwatch.org